GEN. GREENE MONUMENT

DEDICATED WITH IMPRESSIVE SERVICES LAST FRIDAY.

Addresses by Governor Hughes, General Sickles and Colonel Stegman.

The dedication of the Gen. Greene monument brought to Gettysburg one of the largest crowds of visitors of the season and spending about three days in our town. The visitors began to arrive on Wednesday and all day Thursday until the number on ground of veterans, ladies and others exceeded a thousand. On Sunday morning the last of the visitors had departed.

The special train of the New York Monument Commission arrived Thursday afternoon with about 100 passengers. Among the prominent ones were Gov. Hughes of New York, Major General Frederick D. Grant, Major General Daniel E. Sickles, Major General Alexander G. McCook, Adjutant General Nelson M. Henry, Col. Lewis R. Stryker, Major A. J. Sabinskie, Senator John Rainey, President and Lafayette L. Gleason, Clerk of the New York Senate, Speaker Wadsworth and Clerk Baxter of the Assembly Congressman Geo. R. Mallory, General Horatio C. King, R. H. Perry, the sculptor of the statue, and others. There were 21 descendants of General Geo. S. Greene from his son General Francis V. Greene to a great-granddaughter. Upon the arrival of these distinguished guests a Governor's salute and a Major General's salute was fired by Battery E of the Third U. S. Field Artillery. Gov. Hughes and party went upon a drive over the field at once. In the evening at their train along the W. M. freight depot, the Citizens' Band gave a concert of about two hours.

The Second Squadron of the 13th U. S. Cavalry, Major J. T. Dickman, commanding, arrived on Wednesday afternoon and went into camp on Pardee Field and Battery E of the 3rd U. S. Artillery under Capt. Arthur F. Cassells, went into camp on south side of East Cemetery Hill. The presence of the cavalry and artillery added much to the occasion. They started for Washington overland on Sunday morning.

More than 500 surviving veterans from the 60th, 78th, 102nd, 137th, 148th, 14th, 45th, and 157th N. Y. regiments participating in the fight at Culp's Hill were present.

Friday morning was spent visiting the field. Friday afternoon an impressive parade led the way to the monument on Culp's Hill. The cavalry were at the head of the procession, followed by the artillery, then the prominent visitors composing the New York Monument Commission in carriages. The Citizens' Band of Gettysburg followed leading the survivors of the various regiments, each squad of veterans carrying flags to distinguish their regiment. The parade formed on the Square about 2 o'clock.

Reaching the summit of Culp's Hill the survivors and great throng of visitors and of our own people gathered around the stand at the monument of General Greene. The Citizens' Band opened with music followed by prayer by Rev. W. T. Gray of the 102d N. Y. Regt.

Gen. Sickles' Address.

General Sickles presided at the ceremonies and in closing his opening address declared that it was the "last address that I shall ever make on the field of Gettysburg." He said among other things:

The Legislature of the State of N. Y. at the last session authorized the board of commissioners to provide transportation to Gettysburg for fifty surviving veterans of each of the nine regiments that took part, under the command of General Greene, in the battle of Culp's Hill, so that they could be present at the dedication of this monument erected to commemorate their services and the services of their commanders. I am glad to welcome these veterans, more than five hundred in number here today. Forty-four years after the battle they meet again on the field of honor. May God bless them and spare them yet longer.

More than forty thousand men fell in this field. On our side we had 55,000 in the battle. Of these New York contributed 27,000. The loss in the Union army was 23,000, of which 5,000 was borne by New York troops. The state of New York raised 400,000 men for the Union army. Of this vast number 5,000 died in service. Of the renowned battalions whose losses in killed and wounded were the largest, as shown by Fox, the historian, fifty-nine regiments were New York troops. From '61 to '65 the state of New York expended $125,000,000 in raising and equipping its forces. New York regiments and batteries fought in more than a thousand battles, engagements and skirmishes apart from this battlefield. Hundreds of naval and military monuments are already placed in as many towns and cities in our state. Gettysburg was a decisive victory, won at a moment when defeat might have been ruinous to our cause. It marked the beginning of the fall of the Southern Confederacy. Our success was gained over the most formidable army ever encountered by the Union forces.

After music by band the monument was unveiled by George S. Green Jr., and as the Stars and Stripes fell from the Lyons Tower Battery E fired a Major General's salute of seventeen guns.

Col. Stegman's Address.

Colonel Lewis R. Stegman of the

102d N. Y. Regt., who had been in the fight on Culp's Hill, followed with an address, saying:

The fierce attack by Longstreet on the left of the Union army, commanded by Sickles, on July 2, 1863, caused Meade, the commander-in-chief, to deplete many parts of his line to send reinforcements to Sickles. Among other orders was one to Slocum to send over the whole of the Twelfth Corps from the extreme right of the army to the left. Slocum protested, stating that the enemy were strong in his front and prepared for the offensive. Despite his protests, he was permitted to leave only one small brigade, Greene's, to defend the whole of the Twelfth Corps' front at Culp's Hill.

Immediately to the rear of the 12th Corps' position were parked the reserve artillery and ammunition trains of the Army of the Potomac. By the removal of the corps this position was left fully exposed to the attack of the enemy. Only a short distance from the artillery were Meade's own headquarters and the centre of the Union army's rear. Much depended upon the Twelfth Corps' line being held. To remove meant possibilities that foretold disaster. To leave this defense to one brigade was a sad mistake of military judgment. But the mistake was offset by the triumph of the battle that ensued. As Bates, the historian of Pennsylvania, says: "The grim determination of General Greene and the magnificent valor of the statue, and others. There were 21 descendants of General Geo. S. Greene from his son General Francis V. Greene to a great-granddaughter. Upon the arrival of these distinguished guests a Governor's salute and a Major General's salute was fired by Battery E of the Third U. S. Field Artillery. Gov. Col. Stegman's Address.

Colonel Lewis R. Stegman of the

102d N. Y. Regt., who had been in the fight on Culp's Hill, followed with an address, saying:

On this spot at a critical moment when darkness added to the terror of sudden attack by superior numbers of our New York boys of Greene's brigade held firm and by heroic defense protected the safety of the army. To their sagacious, alert and courageous General, we, the sons of the Empire State, erect this monument, expressing our love, our pride, our lasting obligation.

The generation which fought here has almost passed away. The distinguished leaders still with us, and in whose presence we rejoice today, recall to us the more vividly the many who have departed. Their sacrifices were not in vain. The same national character which accounted for the fierceness of that strife in whose devouring flames were displayed the indestructible riches of moral strength ours today. The same patriotic ardor fills the breasts of American youth as when they rushed from field and factory and college in obedience to their country's summons. The wives and mothers of America are as loving, as devoted, as ready to sacrifice and to suffer as were those of forty-odd years ago. The men of the United States are as quick to respond to the call of duty, as keen, as resourceful, as valiant, as those of our heroic past. They are blest with the memories of your labors; they are enriched with the lessons of your zeal; they are inspired with the example of your patriotism.

"We are engrossed in the pursuits of peace. Mind and nerve are strained to the utmost in the varied activities which promise opportunity for individual achievement. But the American heart thrills at the sight of the flag; the American conscience points unwaveringly to the path of honor; the American sense of justice was never more supreme in its sway, and united by a common appreciation of the ideals of a free government, by a common preception of our national destiny, by a common recognition of the riches of our inheritance, the American people should, and we believe will, go steadily forward, a happy, resourceful and triumphant people, enjoying in ever greater degree the blessings of liberty and union."

Major General Fred D. Grant was introduced and in a few words spoke of the great honor he felt of being present on the occasion.

Major Gen. A. S. Webb briefly spoke, telling of an incident of the battle on Culp's Hill, how when Wadsworth had sent several regiments to the help of General Greene, and they arrived in the woods an order was given by an officer there to retire, and that after the war he met the officer, and gave this order to the Union troops.

The reunion was so successful that it was decided to hold one each year, executive committee to select place. After the business session at Park the veterans returned to a banquet at Colonial Hotel, York, and in the evening a camp fire was held with Colonel Schall presiding.

At close of delightful evening the following resolution was adopted in honor of their commander Gen. Schall:

"It is our privilege tonight to honor at this meeting one whose continuous services to his country have stretched over the average span of life: one who starting in 1856 has reached through successive and richly deserved promotions and exalted position of major general; whose comradeship, sterling worth and heroism have endeared him to all his associates; one whose soldierly qualities stand out pre-eminently, our beloved commander, Major John Schall."

Colonel Stahle is the oldest known survivor having recently celebrated his 75th birthday. He was a brother of the late Henry J. Stahle, of the Compiler. The youngest is James B. Gray of York 60 years old.

The 57th Pa. Regt. was organized in fall of 1861 and of the 10 companies 8 were from York County and 2 from Adams. The regiment figured in 28 engagements, some of them the most bitter of the war. After three years of service it was mustered out at the close of the war and disbanded in Center Square, York.

Carlisle Presbytery.

The Carlisle Presbytery began a two day session on Tuesday evening of last week in Olivet Presbyterian church at Harrisburg.

Rev. R. F. McClean, of Mechanicsburg, the retiring moderator, preached the sermon on Tuesday evening. In opening he remarked: "This might well be made an occasion for reminiscence. Born and reared within the bounds of this presbytery, a child of the covenant, great-grandfather, grandfather and father in turn ruling elders of one of its churches, ministers on its roll from among his ancestors on both sides, himself ordained to the ministry by the laying on of its hands 35 years ago, laboring for more than 30 years within its borders and under its authority, the preacher of tonight could lovingly, admiringly, gratefully speak of fathers and brethren, most of them gone before, some few of them still spared to labor with us and to bless us with their counsel, their prayers, their example and their presence."

Then taking his text from Mathew 20-26, he preached the greatness of service to mankind in home, and shop, and school, and field and wayside, with a cheering, loving word and a helping hand.

Rev. Alfred A. Lott, of Newport, the new moderator, presided at meetings, appointed committees. It was agreed to employ Rev. S. S. Aikman, D. D., of Ohio, as an evangelist for one year and a partial schedule of his work was planned, covering Waynesboro, McConnellsburg, Dillsburg, Newville, Carlisle and Silver Spring.

The work, progress and prospects of Wilson College were fully reported upon and it was urged that an endowment be provided to make it what it could easily be made—the foremost college for young women in the Middle States. A committee was appointed to consider plan for an endowment.

The report of the presbytery for the year ending March 31, 1907, shows an increase of one church and one minister over the year preceding. Although there has been a decrease in communicants of 34 and in Sabbath school membership of 121, the total contributions show an increase $13,178—$16 per member as compared with $14.61 last year.

St. Mary's Cemetery.

Right Rev. John W. Shanahan, D. D., Bishop of the Harrisburg diocese, officiated at the solemn dedication of the new St. Mary's cemetery at McSherrystown, Sunday afternoon, Sept. 22. Prior to the ceremony the congregation assembled in the church, when headed by the altar boys, the clergy and Right Rev. Bishop, the march to the burial ground began. Five temporary crosses were erected in different parts of the cemetery, at each of which special prayers were offered by the Bishop, and upon which he placed three candles which were lighted and left to burn down.

After blessing the place of burial, which consumed an hour, the procession returned to the church where the ceremony was concluded by the offering of general prayers and prayers for the repose of the souls departed faithful. At this service Rev. Eugene Haltermeyer served as deacon, Rev. L. Aug. Rendier, rector, as sub-deacon, and Rev. Father Brown, assistant rector, as master of ceremonies.

B. Ebert and Sons Fail.

Augustus H. Ebert, trading as B. Ebert and Sons and Mrs. Augustus H. Ebert, of Frederick, have gone into voluntary bankruptcy and have been adjudged bankrupts.

Augustus H. Ebert, trading as B. Ebert and Sons, is well known in this county having been involved in extensive litigation a few years ago with the L. M. Allerman Hardware Company, for the recovery of about $10,000 put in the store at one time it was first opened in Gettysburg.

The firm of B. Ebert and Sons has been in the carriage and hardware business at Frederick for a number of years. On July 18 last the carriage factory was destroyed by fire.

The liabilities of B. Ebert and Sons are placed at $20,000 and assets at $15,000. It is said that the failure was principally due to the fire.

Mrs. Ebert's liabilities are estimated at $14,467.15 with assets of $4,294.50.

Rev. Albertson Goes to Nebraska.

Rev. G. H. Albertson, for nearly four years pastor of the Methodist churches at Ronzerville and Mt. Alto.

He has resigned his pastorate and will leave in a few weeks for Nebraska where he will accept a charge.

Rev. Albertson has been stationed at Ronzerville for two and a half years and has served the congregations at Ronzerville and Mt. Alto in Franklin county and one in Franklin township this county.

He has greatly endeared himself to the people of his congregation and his departure is deeply regretted.

The change he vacates will be supplied with a minister until conference meets.

That's just what I've been trying to prove to Elizabeth for the last two months," Mrs. Jensen, "enraged and annoyed the young man. "And she?" "She?" said the young woman.

AN OLD MAN'S TRIBUTE.

WHEN SHE HURRIED

LIZABETH," said the young man to the pretty girl, "I dislike to say anything that might in any way distract you, but the hour grows late. We have 18 miles to go and four lines of traction problem to travel over and a number of transfers to make. Can you manage to be ready presently—or at least before very long?"

"But I am hurrying, Henry," said the pretty young woman. "And, besides, you came too soon. Don't you see, this is the maid's afternoon out and I cannot leave with the house in such disorder as this. What would mamma think? I'll be ready in five minutes. Oh, I'll hurry!"

"Don't hurry," said the young man resignedly. "That would take too much time. Do you know, I've often wondered if a girl really can make time by hurrying. I've seen them try it."

"You horrid thing!"

"That is, I've seen my sister try it, but she always lost out in the end, because something invariably got misplaced or broken or was forgotten."

The young woman rapidly straightened out a tangle of magazines on the reading table and gave the room a general survey. "Well," she said, "I'm not like that. I'm different. And, besides, a girl doesn't lose her head half as quick as a man, and I'll prove it now you wait just one minute."

She disappeared through the door with a swish and a flurry and in an amazingly short space of time reappeared ready for the departure—her hat and veil on in admirable shape, her cloak in place, her hands gloved and her muff and other trimmings all there.

"See?" she said triumphantly to the young man, who looked up in astonishment. "I did it! Now, just one look around. You know mamma will be here before we get back and she will be shocked if everything isn't just so. She's a dreadfully careful housekeeper. Ah, I had almost overlooked this duster which Bettina left here—she's awfully careless—or was it?"

She picked up the duster and held it meditatively by the string and cudgled his brain to find what it was that she was sure she was just about to forget. "The key," she said, "the key! I had almost forgotten it. I must go to mamma's room for it." She thrust her arm through the string of the duster, and dashed out again, her intention being to deposit the duster in its appointed place on the way.

When she dashed back in ten seconds she had the key, but the duster was still on her arm, although entirely forgotten. The young man saw it, smiled, opened his lips to speak and then checked himself.

"All ready," said the girl. "And I did make time, too, without forgetting a thing."

"Indeed you did," said the young man. "You're a dear."

Together they hurried out, the duster going with them. The young woman was too much interested to notice, and her big muff helped, for the duster hung just below it and beyond her line of vision.

When would she discover it? The young man wondered. When they reached the car line the girl was chattering gayly. As they seated themselves the duster, by some freak of fortune, was buried from sight, at least from the young woman's sight. But other people saw it and stared and smiled, and the young woman, observing, tried to content herself with the knowledge that her cheeks were glowing and eyes bright. But when she saw the woman with the fur muff nudge her companion and point with her thumb toward her, the young woman began to be uneasy. And when the tall man in the silk hat started violently and twisted his face in an effort to conceal some emotion she could stand it no longer.

After blessing the place of burial, which consumed an hour, the procession returned to the church where the ceremony was concluded by the offering of general prayers and prayers for the repose of the souls departed faithful. At this service Rev. Eugene Haltermeyer served as deacon, Rev. L. Aug. Rendier, rector, as sub-deacon, and Rev. Father Brown, assistant rector, as master of ceremonies.

B. Ebert and Sons Fail.

Augustus H. Ebert, trading as B. Ebert and Sons and Mrs. Augustus H. Ebert, of Frederick, have gone into voluntary bankruptcy and have been adjudged bankrupts.

Augustus H. Ebert, trading as B. Ebert and Sons, is well known in this county having been involved in extensive litigation a few years ago with the L. M. Allerman Hardware Company, for the recovery of about $10,000 put in the store at one time it was first opened in Gettysburg.

The firm of B. Ebert and Sons has been in the carriage and hardware business at Frederick for a number of years. On July 18 last the carriage factory was destroyed by fire.

The liabilities of B. Ebert and Sons are placed at $20,000 and assets at $15,000. It is said that the failure was principally due to the fire.

Mrs. Ebert's liabilities are estimated at $14,467.15 with assets of $4,294.50.

He has resigned his pastorate and will leave in a few weeks for Nebraska where he will accept a charge.

The latter person turned to her escort. "Henry Jones," she said, "have you let me carry that awful thing on the way from home? You see, she explained to her grandmother, "we left home in such a hurry."

"Well," said the white-haired woman, "you must be crazy or else in love!"

"Duster?" said the girl blankly.

The white-haired woman snatched at the object that dangled at the girl's arm.

The latter person turned to her escort. "Henry Jones," she said, "have you let me carry that awful thing on the way from home? You see, she explained to her grandmother, "we left home in such a hurry."

"Well," said the white-haired woman, "you must be crazy or else in love!"

"That's just what I've been trying to prove to Elizabeth for the last two months," Mrs. Jensen, "enraged and annoyed the young man. "And she?"

"She?" said the young woman.

"Shh!" said the young woman.

Catalpa Speciosa Tree.

This will be the future timber of this country. The railroads have invested millions of dollars in this timber for cross ties and telegraph poles for the future. This timber is the native forest tree of the lower Wabash Valley. In 6 years this timber will grow large enough for posts and rails, which will last exposed to all kinds of weather, from 85 to 90 years. Split shingles on houses in its native country last over 100 years. These trees while growing, are clad in myriad robes of beautiful foliage of flowers. Every new home in the county should have a few of these trees in the yard as they are fast growers. We will have a few thousand of these valuable trees which can be transplanted from our gardens in September and October, 1907. We secured a few seeds at a big expense last winter. We will sell the trees at $3 per 100, less than a 100, 5 cents each. We will have at the same time 80,000 fine large Ginseng Plants which we will sell at 50 cents per 100. The above in city nurseries are quoted at $10 per 100. Every person should assist in introducing this long lasting timber in this county. Call at our gardens, or address

THE COMING ELECTION

The present campaign is drawing to a close, one more month will see it over. This month should be one of greatest activity for the State and county ticket.

Though the ticket is small the issues are monumental. It has been presented in a number of lights recently. There is no question that the election of Sheatz Republican candidate for Treasurer will be used to mean that the people do not approve of the prosecution of the Capital grafters. The election of Hartran, the Democratic candidate can have but one meaning, that the people want the looters tried, convicted and punished.

It has already been declared by the Philadelphia gang that the election of Sheatz will be taken to mean an endorsement of the candidacy of Penrose for United States Senate.

The candidacy of Sheatz does disservice to the veterans who fought to preserve the Union. His attitude to the veteran on the bill to pension the old soldier was one to his everlasting discredit and one that no manly man would ever have taken, but such as one who had been a tool of the gang could be expected to assume.

These issues give the brightest of prospects that Adams County will go Democratic this year by a good majority. Democrats are a unit to punish the grafters, to prevent the disgrace of another term of Penrose, to place the Treasury of the State where the gang can not control it and to avenge the dishonorable treatment of the old soldier and there are hundreds of Republicans ready to join hands with the Democrats on these issues.

S. MILEY MILLER

Democratic candidate for County Surveyor is one of the best surveyors in the county, in fact there are none better. He has surveyed thousand of acres for the State and individuals and has made a name for accuracy and care. Mr. Miller's election is certain as he has no opponent. But Mr. Miller has led the Democratic party to victory for several years as County chairman and Democrats are going to turn out to honor him who has faithfully worked for his party.

L. M. Buehler's New Departure.
After two months of remarkable sales, L. M. Buehler, the enterprising druggist, says that his plan of selling at half price the regular 50 cent size of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and guaranteeing to refund the money if it does not cure, has been the greatest success he has ever known.

He has sold hundreds of bottles of the specific; and as yet has not had one returned, although he stands ready at any time to refund the money should any customer be dissatisfied. This is the strongest testimony that can be furnished to the great merit of this medicine.

Anyone suffering with dyspepsia, constipation, liver troubles, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, or the general tired feeling caused by inactive liver and bowels or disordered digestion, should take advantage of L. M. Buehler's new departure and buy a bottle of Dr. Howard's specific at half price, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

Under Mr. L. M. Buehler's special half price offer, this means a month's treatment for 25 cents, with the best medicine known for the cure of constipation and stomach troubles.

ARREST OF GRAFTERS A GREAT FARCE

The Sam Salter Case an Exact Parallel in Every Way.

Like that Infamous Ballot Box Stuff. They Remained in Concealment Until Arrangements for Their Acquittal Were Made.

Progress of the Democratic Campaign

The Surrender of Sanderson and Huston a False Pretense to Promote the Success of the Machine Candidate.

(Special Correspondence.)

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 25. That history repeats itself is proverbial. When Samuel Salter was "caught with the goods on him" a few years ago, he "took a header," so to speak. He went to Mexico, the story goes, and remained a fugitive until arrangements for his " vindication" had been completed. At vast expense in money and morals John Weaver was elected District Attorney, defeated a candidate who had proved incorruptible. Then Salter surrendered to the authorities and submitted himself to the ordeal of a trial in the criminal courts. Of course he was acquitted. The evidence of his culpability was overwhelming. He had practically confessed his guilt. But the safety of those "higher up" required his acquittal and the programme was made to suit the exigencies.

When the capital graft investigation assumed the appearance of earnestness, six months ago, Contractor Sanderson and Architect Huston left the jurisdiction of the courts and remained away until arrangements for their acquittal had been perfected. Then, following the example of Salter, they surrendered. Last week they turned up in Harrisburg and gave bail for appearance in the Dauphin county criminal court, when wanted. They will probably be indicted during the present session of the court, but that is not certain. The machine District Attorney of that court is already protesting that the calendar is crowded with petty cases which may occupy the whole time of the Grand Jury. Only those concerned know exactly the terms of the agreement.

The Arrest a Colossal Fraud.

One thing is absolutely certain, however. They won't be tried before the election and if the machine candidate for State Treasurer is successful, it is not likely that they will be tried at all. The issuing of the warrants, the surrender and entering of bonds are the various parts of a big bluff. The arrest of Auditor General Snyder and former Superintendent of Public Grounds and Buildings Shumaker, is merely an incident of the farce. It is the stage setting of the play which gives verisimilitude to the plot. Sanderson and Huston are insignificant factors in the conspiracy. The prosecution of them alone would "be laughed out of court." The inculpation of some of the politicians was necessary to make the comedy effective. You can't fool a considerable number of people with an obvious humbug.

The purpose of the thing is to fool the people into the belief that the Republican machine will purify itself if it gets the opportunity—that it will punish its own rascals. That would be a strong tax on popular credulity even if the plans had been better laid. The machine has never punished one of its criminals and never will. Even now the memory of Quay is revered above all other party leaders and he would have died in the penitentiary if he hadn't pleaded the statute of limitations. Every present manager of the organization hopes to see his monument erected in the State capitol to insult the conscience of the Commonwealth. There has been no reform and there is no contrition. In fact there is nothing but a false pretense to deceive the people in order that the looting may be resumed.

Pennypacker the Arch-Conspirator.

The purpose had been to "cleanse the Augean stables." Pennypacker would have been the first man to be summoned to the bar of justice. The charges against all are that they conspired to loot the treasury through collusion and the misinterpretation of the law in disbursing the sum of the State. It was Pennypacker's main contention that he was elected to the Senate and that the Senate and the House of Representatives were in a position to do what they wanted to do. He also claimed that the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings was "feminized" and that it was a "one man show." He also claimed that the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings was "more or less controlled by the General Association of the City of Philadelphia." But the public spending on the part of the General Association was not the only reason why the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings was controlled by the General Association. The reason was that the General Association had a large amount of money and influence in the city of Philadelphia and that the General Association was controlled by the General Association of the City of Philadelphia.

There would be no cause of complaint in the arrest of Auditor General Snyder and State Treasurer Mathews if there was even the smallest of a hope that it is a genuine effort to punish mal-factors and enforce restitution of the golden treasure.

But there is no such purpose. The machine candidate who helped to create the legislation under which the looting was made possible will not aid any movement to punish the criminals if successful. They are all active in supporting his candidacy. They are anxious for his election and he will favor them after the event if it occurs, notwithstanding his promises of improvement now. A leopard can't change his spots and a machine politician never betrays his friends. Quay taught the doctrine of honor among crooks.

Mr. Sheatz's Recreancy Revealed.

The legislative work of Mr. Sheatz already reviewed at some length in this correspondence, is the best evidence of his servility to the machine. During the session of 1907 he had splendid opportunities to serve the people but invariably voted with the quakers or dodged. One notable instance of his recreancy in this report was reverted on the evening of Monday, April 29. On that occasion Representative Flynn of Elk county offered a resolution reciting the fact that Contractor Sanderson and Architect Huston had demanded additional payments amounting to $200,000 which Mr. Berry had refused to allow notwithstanding the opinion of Attorney General Carson to the contrary, thanking the State Treasurer for his action and pledging him the moral support of the General Assembly "to the end that his righteous purpose may be consummated."

One would think that any just man would take pleasure in supporting such a resolution under such circumstances. But that expectation was disappointed. Representative Call led an attempt to overwhelm it with ridicule and other machine representatives tried to make it absurd by proposing to substitute the name of Governor Stuart for that of Mr. Berry though Governor Stuart had nothing to do with the matter. Finally Representative Miller of Venango moved to refer it to the Graft Investigating commission. The party whip was lashed about with great vigor and enough votes secured for the motion to carry it. All the real reform Republicans on the floor voted against the motion but Sheatz lacked courage or character to vote on either side. He simply dodged.—Legislative Record, page 3591.

Democratic Campaign Progressing.

The Democratic campaign is making gratifying progress and no intelligent observer, familiar with the facts, any longer doubts the election of John C. Harman to succeed Mr. Berry in the office of State Treasurer.

The State committee has the most flattering reports from all sections of the State and outside of Philadelphia Mr. Harman's vote and majority will far exceed those of Mr. Berry two years ago. Then Allegheny county, with its fraudulent vote mill running overtime, rolled up an immense majority for the machine candidate. This year most of the machine leaders in that county are busy keeping out of jail, and the machine majority will only be nominal.

To day the State Committee occupies branch headquarters in rooms 101, 102 and 103, Hotel Walton, Philadelphia where county Chairmen and others having correspondence with the Committee are requested to address their letters. The Committee occupied the same rooms during the closing period of the campaign for Mr. Berry two years ago and watched the manoevers and manipulations of the machine managers from them. It is not expected that the city will give Harman a majority as it gave Berry, but it is absolutely certain that there will be no ballot box stuffing there this year even though the municipal administration is willing to encourage that form of crime.

Sheatz Won't Meet Harman.

Mr. Harman is still patiently waiting for Mr. Sheatz's answer to his challenge to discuss the vital issue of the campaign on the hustings, but has about given up hope of an acceptance. It is really a pity that this question of minority representation is not to be elucidated in joint debate. We all know that the looting of the treasury occurred when the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings was composed of men of one party and that almost as soon as minority representation was introduced exposure came and the end of the iniquity followed. Most people feel, moreover, that a restoration of the cause will work a resumption of the effect. In view of the facts the debate would have been illuminating and valuable.

But whatever his personal inclinations might be Mr. Sheatz will not be permitted to discuss the question in that way. Such a debate would be disastrous to Penrose's ambitions and after all they are the matters of chief concern to the managers of the machine. Sheatz is only a puppet for Penrose. As Contractor McNichol declared the other day, the re-election of Penrose is the paramount question in the campaign from a machine viewpoint and Sheatz won't be allowed to do anything that might impair Penrose's chances.

G. D. H.

Mr. Harman's Campaign. From the Philadelphia Record.

It is well that the Democratic leaders recognize that it is worth while to make an effort to elect Mr. Harman. Although the Lincoln Party and the City Party are not in the lead, their voters are in existence and plenty of them have no objection of bearing the color of the Machine. Paul Landis' appeal to the Old Colony voters to "wake up" did not materially indicate that the Old Colony is not only well satisfied with the outlook, and as well that his candidate will be heard by supporters, who are still quite disturbed, will not be a serious impediment. The old guard of the machine is not yet dead, but the new generation is coming along and the old guard is not able to compete with the new.

If the efforts of Senator Penrose fail to bring a convention which nominated John O. Sheatz for State Treasurer, why will not the old guard, the machine, come in? The old guard is not yet dead, but the new generation is coming along and the old guard is not able to compete with the new.

The friends of President Roosevelt in Pennsylvania are not promoting his policies or helping his political estate by supporting John O. Sheatz, the machine candidate, for State Treasurer. Mr. Sheatz is the candidate of a gang which would cruelly rather than honor Roosevelt and his vote against the Creasy resolution endorsing the President's income tax bill during the session of 1907 proves that he is in full accord with his political masters on that subject.

Local officials will not antagonize because they are of the same party. The danger of having the State government "too unanimous" has been abundantly proved. The importance of having a man in the Treasury who is under no obligations to the machine has been proved so completely that the meanest comprehension, if not hypnotized by partisanship, cannot fail to see it. Voters in this city who went back to the Organization in February have waked up to find themselves under the same old gang. The humbug of reform within the party has been exposed. The chances of electing Mr. Harman are good.

Sheatz and Reyburn.

From the Bellefonte Dem. Watchman

Mayor Reyburn, of Philadelphia, announces that "all the martyrs of 1905" are to be restored to office. By the "martyrs of 1905" he means those who were thrown out of office after the political convulsion of that year in that city. An extraordinary bold attempt had been made to steal the gas plant there and bestow it upon some friends of the machine and the public conscience revolted at the atrocity. As a result of the incident some of the machine officials were summarily discharged from office. The meaning of Mr. Reyburn's announcement may be easily conjectured.

The election of the eminently respectable machine Mayor in Philadelphia has already restored most of the machine emissaries to office and the Mayor assures the others that their time is coming, law or no law. In other words, notwithstanding the civil service regulations which protect fit men from getting place, Mayor Reyburn will get rid of one and secure the appointment of the other sort. Loyalty to the organization is the standard by which Mayor Reyburn measures public service and the organization, according to his notion, is the machine.

The policy which Mayor Reyburn announces is precisely what is to be expected in the State in the event that Sheatz, the machine candidate, is elected to the office of State Treasurer. He was nominated by the machine to serve the machine. Primarily the machine cares nothing for Sheatz. Any other man of the same characteristics would do as well. But Sheatz was the available man at the time and was chosen because his false pretense of reform would help Penrose and hurt no machine Republican interest. If elected he will help the machine and in either event he will help Penrose.

The writer does not believe the election of a Democratic Treasurer will imperil the business interests of this country or endanger Republican national success, and a number of voters interviewed, who have always voted the Republican ticket, are in entire accord with this view.

Owen Wister is so widely and favorably known as a writer that no one will be surprised that he touched the very heart of the capitol graft scandal in an article which is published in Everybody's Magazine for October. It can hardly be said that he is either a muck-raker or a sensation monger. But it is within the limit of conservation to say that no other writer on the subject has criticised it so severely or denounced it more vehemently. He probably overestimates the merits of the City Party of Philadelphia and certainly undervalues the part which Mr. Berry took in the exposure and checking of the looting operations.

But he is neither too lenient nor too severe when he declares that the "people of Pennsylvania are not self-respecting." and that Philadelphia is "the dirtiest smear on the map of the United States." If the people of Pennsylvania were self respecting they would scourge the political pirates who have been preying on the industry and commerce of the people for years and if Philadelphia were not "the dirtiest smear on the map of the United States," the rotten machine wouldn't have been restored to power and plunder so soon after its overthrow two
